Q1

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Somewhat familiar,

Comments?:

There is a lot in the news nationally about this subject

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Somewhat familiar

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They record both video or capture still images of license plates

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Use of federal, state and local government to track ordinary citizens (or anybody) for any reason they want.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Tracking a criminal obviously should be the goal. It is clearly not being used only for this purpose.

Page 2

Q6

What has shaped your view on this topic? Select all that apply.

News coverage of this system in other towns,

Information from town meetings or the working group,

Conversations with neighbors or friends,

General principles/values about privacy and government (not specific to this system)

Any Comments?:

Big Brother is now watching us, ordinary citizens. The main goal of finding criminals is not enough reason to continue with this policy.

Q7

Regarding the previous question.... How strongly held is this view?

Strongly held based upon researched knowledge

Would prefer they not be used

Q3 They capture still images
As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4
What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?
The data are or can be shared, there is no federal regulation (and none to be expected with the current Congress), and it turns our community into a surveillance state

Q5
What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?
I do not have hopes of benefit for anything that leads to a police state

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Our town is small. We don't have the crime that requires cctv or tech coverage. It's too much of a temptation to be used for other uses huge invasion of privacy.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Don't want this technology in our town. Take them down. Use the funds for town services such as ems and fire

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

No concern with the technology. SLIGHT concern with abuse by people that have access to the data but I think this is manageable by the people deploying the tools and with software and license modifications.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Data has proven that this is valuable technology. I think too many people are paranoid about big brother watching. Spend your time and energy on more valuable endeavors and let technology help law enforcement.....with the correct guidelines and punishment for abusing the privileges or privacy of citizens.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

These cameras were installed without letting the citizens of the town be notified or allowed to have a say in wanting these cameras installed for the town. The data that these cameras are recording are being stored on third party storage systems and they can easily access the data and/or sell that information to another company without your knowledge.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

If the cameras are owned and controlled locally by the town and a third party company is not involved, then that's fine to store data from the cameras. Third party companies should not get involved with the town.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They capture still images

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Intrusion of government into the private lives of average citizens. I haven't had a speeding ticket in 40+ years. There is no need for any camera to take a picture of my vehicle.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That they help solve VIOLENT crime. I don't care about speeding, small fender benders, and the like.

Comments?:

This depends on the type/brand and installation type.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

The trade off of constant surveillance and safety is a non-starter. This invasion of personal privacy is unacceptable.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That it goes away and is not used in our town/state/country.

Any Comments?:

The extensive misuse of this technology is widely documented. The costs vs benefits has not been provided to the town. We have no say in who uses the data that is cap trued. Commercial vendors have proven time and again that they cannot be trusted from a security and privacy standpoint. Deciding to put OUR data into their hands without our consent is unacceptable.

The consolidation and sharing of metadata between law enforcement groups and paid commercial customers. Additionally, the single-party, warrantless "oversight" provided by GPD's current policy is wholly unacceptable and offers zero meaningful controls.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

None. Get rid of them, Flock / Axon / Motorola, etc. There is no possible benefit of this technology that overrides the privacy concerns that I have.

Q2 Somewhat familiar

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Q3 I don't know,

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Comments?:

I have no problem with them at all. They will help keep everyone safer. How is this any different than door-bell cameras, or video in supermarkets, banks, etc.?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

As with all technology, systems can be hacked and abused. However, the trust the GPD to be sure that does not happen and our information is confidential.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Enhanced safety for traffic, house break-ins and other crimes. Unfortunately, bad things do happen in Groton from time to time.

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Comments?:

This question is not appropriate for a survey. It appears as though you're testing voter competence. That should not be the goal of a survey.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Unconstitutionally gathering information about people. It isn't just a concern that these companies and federal agencies are inappropriately using this information. There is a plethora of news stories and verifiable misconduct including in the town next to us where they turned the cameras back on against the town's wishes. These examples are where they have got caught doing the wrong thing. There's no way it's an exhaustive list.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

This technology has absolutely no place in American society. This is categorically something we should not be doing. We need to move toward using our resources to prevent the scenarios that result in crime, not invest in solving the crimes we should have prevented.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

This technology gives too many people the ability to stalk or track people. In a time when our rights are being stripped away and the government at the federal level is unstable this can be used for too much bad to overcome the potential positives.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That it gets regulated and not allowed.

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Well VersedQ3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They record video,

Comments?:

This has been shown as something they are capable of doing and in some case are actively doing. Flock conducted a pilot program to do this and has said they opted to not continue this practice. Given the way they have conducted business, it is not a trusted company.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

It is warrantless ongoing surveillance owned and operated by a private company, with zero ability to opt out of personal data storage for an undetermined amount of time and zero oversight.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That they get removed and banned.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

As with any data collection, my biggest concern is who owns the data, where is it stored, and who has access to it. This is critical for everything from work chats and emails to family photos.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That it is only used to investigate crimes committed in our community. Not shared with any data brokers. If the federal government needs information, they need to request it through the correct legal channels.

Q1

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Well Versed,

Comments?:

Some of these devices also have the ability to pull data from nearby cell phones, and they also record bumper stickers and other window stickers and also ID operators, AND they can record and create heat trails and maps to identify patterns of travel, so it's not just reading plates.

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Well Versed,

Comments?:

To my knowledge, there are three such cameras/devices in Groton.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They capture still images,

Comments?:

See my comments above, License plates are not all that is recorded.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Breach of our constitutional right to be free of unreasonable searches and seizures, and also the right not to be constantly surveilled by the government. It is not a coincidence that these Flock cameras, data centers, and the construction of concentration camps in America all occurred at roughly the same time.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

There is none. The alleged security benefits are far outweighed by the intrusion into our privacy and right not to be under government surveillance. In fact, this question is a push question as the factual basis underlying the question itself is that there are benefits of this technology. This is outrageous.

Q1

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Well Versed,

Comments?:

This technology is not new but is developing rapidly.

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Somewhat familiar,

Comments?:

We have cameras on 119 as far as I know

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They record both video or capture still images of license plates

Comments?:

They can potentially collect even more information including radio signals from phones that uniquely map to a person. Limiting the right to record in public is a slippery slope that needs to be considered carefully. We do not want to end up legislating away our individual rights out of "privacy concerns" - we could end up where only expensive systems with government access are "approved".

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Civil citations. Investigations turning into "Fishing expeditions". Lack of human in the loop to check information before potentially dangerous action is taken, like a felony stop or raiding a home

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Catching criminals. Controls in the technology to monitor for abuse/misuse - which seem to be present based on recent headlines where individual officers have been caught.

Q3 They record both video or capture still images of license plates

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4
What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

The disgusting invasion of privacy that has been observed in the use of this technology due to the abuse of power of those in control of it. Don't get me wrong, I'm not saying all are misusing it, but we have already seen people using it for evil by stalking individuals for personal reasons. The flock safety website states, " Flock customers own 100% of their data. This means we will never sell or share public safety data or footage with third parties. Once captured, footage is transmitted immediately to a secure cloud server and then deleted from the device. All footage is deleted from our servers after 30 days on default, or in the timeframe required by state and local law." Who's to say the server doesn't get hacked within that 30 day window? How many letters have you received about data breaches? Online data servers are not bulletproof to those who have ill-intentions, I promise you that. Mind you, I'm 26, and I am tired of technology. I am tired of constantly feeling under attack by people I don't even know. That is what we are opening ourselves up to by implementing more and more technology like this in our world. We live in Groton, MA for peace, quiet, and privacy that cannot be offered in cities. Please let us live in peace without fear of others misusing their power or finding ways to access our information more than it already is.

Q5
What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

None at all. There is no benefit or justice to the invasion of privacy and lack of democratic process that occurred in adding flock cameras without the knowledge or say so of Groton's residents.

Privacy for individuals and how the developers and owners of this technology have their own (often nefarious) agenda for the data collected. This lack of transparency from the developers and their questionable motives supercede any benefit the town may receive.

My issue is not with the GPD. Their motivation appears to be reasonable, however it is short-sighted and creates more problems than it solves. My problem and concerns lie with the developers of this technology and the growing importance of holding fast to certain protections for members of our town.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

The way it was rolled out with no notice. A facebook member pointed out the flock on the Groton/Townsend line. Was this discussed at a Select board Meeting ?

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

As with any technology - if it is abused by anyone it becomes a problem. We see that some towns reported police officers using the system for personal use. If used for good purpose then it is accepted. Just not sure Groton is a high crime area where we need to have this technology right now.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Overturning valued American civil structure to a technocratic state that sells a vision of 'safety' in trade for control. What is sold today 'as is' is definitely not what the platforms are most capable of today, what they will be capable of next and how they can and will be abused in the future.

Q1

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Somewhat familiar,

Comments?:

I did not feel comfortable with the use of Flock cameras since the access, and use of , information collected opens potential for misuse. I acknowledge being able to identify a vehicle is a benefit to the police for fighting criminal behaviors. Abuse of this information , is of great concern to me.

Q2

Somewhat familiar

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Q3

I don't know

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

They 'Big Brother' aspect is a concern with the climate in our country. I do not want to see innocent people suffer in any way.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Use in apprehension of persons who have potentially exhibited criminal behavior.

Any Comments?:

I am confident in the men and women in our Groton PD- would not expect abuse of any information collected. I am not confident that other parties can be prevented access to collected information.

Comments?:

I believe still frames, though technologically there is nothing stopping the software from being made capable of stringing multiple frames together given the right programming alterations.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

I have no general issue with plate readers on patrol cars or officers. I do not want to see fixed cameras placed around town. This opens the door too far to potential abuse.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope or expected benefit of this technology?

I'd love to help make a patrol officer's job easier by leveraging technology to a certain point.

Any Comments?:

I am a technology professional and technology hobbyist. I do not for one second trust any agency's claim that their system is secure ECT government or otherwise. If it is connected to the Internet in any capacity it is not secure. It is also not secure if it is not connected to the net but the effort to break into it at that point makes the risk/reward ratio shift to the worth it side of things imo.

Surveillance of citizens without consent who are not suspected of a crime. And the opportunity for citizen tracking by agencies without warrants, obtained due to reasonable suspicion of a crime.

Q5

Thus far none. The technology could be used in isolated circumstances with the consent of the citizens of the town. However, at this juncture, I don't feel the benefits outweigh the risks.

Q1

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Somewhat familiar,

Comments?:

I knew they are around and collect varying kinds of data, and that they can be hacked. I also heard they were used to track so-called missing person from Texas. And I read that many towns and cities are ending contracts with Flock. I also read that other companies are competing, and the companies criticize each other's abilities and vulnerabilities.

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Somewhat familiar,

Comments?:

Based only on what I read in the TAG site and what was discussed and voted on in the Spring Town Meeting. I have read articles and heard broadcasts about other towns ending the contracts with Flock, but not about Groton.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

I don't know,

Comments?:

I imagine there are all types of cameras available.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

It can be easily hacked, and there are loose and hackable safeguards to how the data are collected, managed, and used.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

The facts that these systems can be hacked easily and data can be used improperly, severely limit expected benefits. With a perfect system that has all good intentions, total safeguards against bad intentions, and not hackable (is this really possible?), the data could help people track suspects or missing persons.

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Q3

I don't know,

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Comments?:

The specific mechanism by which they gather information is irrelevant. This information is being gathered against the will and preference of the people of the town, based on recent town communications and a town meeting vote. Whether video or still images, the collected data enable powerful tracking capabilities which can be abused, as we have seen in other local towns.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Concern for infringement of privacy rights and concerns about abuse (e.g. as in the recent case in Stow, MA)

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I can see the value of catching hit and run perpetrators or other criminals, but I do not feel that value outweighs the wide surveillance net cast by this technology

Any Comments?:

My initial reaction to discovering there were flock cameras in our town was discomfort with what feels like an overreach of surveillance. This is based on my personal principles of feeling that law enforcement/state must meet a high bar to infringe on private citizen rights (though I strongly support law enforcement, but feel strongly that criminal justice should be based on letting ten guilty men go free rather than locking up one innocent). Upon learning more about Flock and ALP tech in general, I became more strongly opposed. I have now seen lots of news coverage of examples of abuse, most notably in nearby Stow, MA. I understand that the use of these cameras stems from a good-faith effort to prevent and solve crimes, and I support that in theory! But the benefits do not outweigh the harms of this tech in my opinion. Hearing further news coverage and other townsfolk opinions has only strengthened my opposition.

They capture still images,

Comments?:

The LPR use only still images, but newer models are capable of recording videos.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

This is blatant warrantless surveillance. This data has been proven to be misused by countless government and nongovernment actors.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I see very little upside for this technology. However, the only acceptable solution would have the town Groton having exclusive rights to the data with a limited retention policy and an appointed ombudsman.

Q1

Well Versed,

Comments?:

Stories about the misuse of the Flock license plate readers have been on/in the news all over the nation and all over MA. Most towns are removing them because of privacy issues.

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Well Versed,

Comments?:

I was at Spring Town Meeting and heard all about how the license plate readers are used.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

I don't know,

Comments?:

The issue is not about whether they record still images or video. The issue is that they are invasion of privacy and the data is misused all the time -- this has been made quite clear in article after article from towns in MA.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

The data can be misused in quite a number of ways. And Flock, in particular, can access whatever data they want no matter what your contract with them says.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I don't have any hopes of good benefits from this technology! Get rid of the Flock cameras! We voted to defund them at Town Meeting -- now do it!

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Comments?:

The basic technology can do both. Exactly what Groton's Flock cameras are doing is unknown to me, and from the town meeting discussion, it appears that the GPD is unwilling to explain in sufficient detail as a matter of "police business" and operational security...which I say is one of the most insulting and inappropriate utterances by a public official (the Police Chief) I have ever heard at town meeting.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Lack of a clear, and agreed to by the citizens of Groton, policy for how this technology is deployed and utilized.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Actually, I do not currently perceive of ANY benefit for this technology. I am not afraid of "crime" and do not believe that Groton is any safer with this technology in place. Therefore unless one is explained to me, I am against deployment of this in the Town of Groton.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

I am very against having a government agency (local, state, or federal) recording the movements of citizens. I am even further against having a corporation that is not regulated in any manner capturing the information.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Removal of APLR cameras from our community.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Mass surveillance, User misuse, Video and image data privacy/storage practices, legal loopholes through evidence collection of persons across different police/federal jurisdictions without going through the proper information sharing channels across towns/states costing tax payer dollars in legal proceedings if a lawsuit occurs.

Lastly, these devices are hackable through Internet interfaces. CCTV is used for a reason, it is closed circuit so it's not hackable without hardware interference.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Ease of fault identification if a car accident or crime occurs within video frame.

I am in favor of Police/EMS/Firefighter body cameras for a variety of reasons. Body camera footage has been used many times to reduce legal time, protect our officers from wrongful lawsuits, protect the public from wrongful arrest/charges.

For EMS and Firefighters, body camera footage would be a very good way to present real scenarios to new trainees and to help with skill improvement and training within the workforce. Similar to how sports teams analyze their own games. Of course, any distribution/use of footage of victims would need to get consent from those individual or individual's family's in the event of their passing.

Comments?:

I know that other places do this and the videos shared on FB of the intersection of Rte. 40/119/Broadmeadow seem to show that.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

That the data is not secure and will be misused.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I know that Main Street has too many drivers going too fast through the town center and if this could mitigate that it would be great but I'm not convinced that would be the result.

Any Comments?:

The use of this kind of data for unsubstantiated immigration enforcement (harassment of individuals who may or may not be in the country legally) as well as misuse by law enforcement or others who can access the data are big issues - does a small town like Groton require this level of surveillance? I'm skeptical.

Comments?:

Why would you ask a question like this? All I have to do is look up the answer on the internet.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

I am highly concerned about the dangers inherent in a surveillance state. Sure Groton PD might be relatively benign as far as police departments go, but you don't own the data and you can't control how it is used.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

This is a leading question. This survey is therefore disingenuous. I don't want flock cameras in our town. The benefit, whatever it might be, is not worth the price.

Q1

Well Versed

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Well Versed,

Comments?:

My views are based on substantial research and direct participation in Groton's public process. I have reviewed Groton's public presentations and meeting discussions, Police Department materials, Flock policies and contractual information, and the Town Charter; followed Groton's Town Meeting and Select Board consideration of the system; researched ALPR capabilities, privacy, auditing, data sharing, accuracy and documented misuse; reviewed how other Massachusetts municipalities including Littleton and Framingham have addressed Flock; followed pending Massachusetts ALPR privacy legislation; and reviewed information from government sources, independent journalism, civil-liberties organizations, documented cases of misuse, and Flock's own materials. I have deliberately considered both the legitimate investigative benefits claimed for ALPR and the privacy, governance and public-safety risks.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They record both video or capture still images of license plates

Comments?:

This is a trick question and i have no idea what value this holds. The fact is--- its hard to know as a citizen what Flock capability is being used in Groton due to lack of transparency, and I would add, a misconception by the police themselves of the benefits and uses. At Town meeting it was stated they had "4 cameras and a video" . So i would say YES Groton captures plate images, characteristics of the car, and in some instances video. I have seen postings that state there are 6 Flock cameras in use in Groton. I would say my biggest concern is the police themselves, do not seem to publicly state what these can be used for in terms of investigation. They could help where there is limited manpower to reduce investigation time. They are not meaningful deterrents of what some asked at Town Meeting and the Chief seemed to answer in the affirmative: they are not traffic control, cannot catch speeders, cannot issue tickets. In that way they do not act as a "force multiplier". In fact, they could become an overload to the current officers by creating so many hot list alerts that it is hard to determine which to react to. It can lead to errors given technology limits.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

My concern is not with police technology generally, nor do I believe ALPR can never have legitimate investigative value. My concern is that Groton is operating a powerful, searchable surveillance system without the level of independent auditing, public reporting and demonstrated effectiveness that I believe should accompany it.

The controls described so far—limiting access to a few officers and requiring a case number—are useful, but logging is not auditing. If an officer enters case #9035 and searches a particular plate, a meaningful audit should periodically go back to case #9035 and verify that the plate searched, scope of the search and information accessed were actually relevant to that investigation. Documented misuse of ALPR systems elsewhere demonstrates why good governance cannot depend solely on trusting authorized users. Trust is not a control; verification is.

Automated alerts also need human verification. Plate-reading errors, stale or incorrect hot-list information, or other data errors can have serious consequences. A false alert associating an innocent driver's vehicle with a dangerous suspect could cause officers to approach an encounter believing they face a threat that does not actually exist.

I also want meaningful public reporting about effectiveness. If Groton receives large numbers of hot-list alerts, how many are verified, how many are actionable, how many receive an officer response, and how many produce a meaningful public-safety outcome? If Flock is justified as a "force multiplier" for a department with limited staffing, we should measure whether it actually saves officer time or instead creates additional alerts requiring limited personnel to investigate.

Similarly, the Department has cited recurring road-rage reports at a particular intersection during approximately the same morning hours. If existing reports already tell police where and when the problem occurs, Flock is not necessary to identify that patrol-deployment need. If its value is instead identifying a vehicle after a particular incident, that should be described and evaluated as a retrospective investigative use.

I would support consideration of ALPR under a formal, publicly adopted Select Board policy that establishes permitted and prohibited uses, independent auditing, verification of automated alerts, external data-sharing restrictions, cybersecurity/privacy review, regular public reporting of use and outcomes, consequences for misuse, and public/Select Board approval before expansion.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

More efficient investigation of serious crimes by helping police identify or locate a relevant vehicle when there is a legitimate investigative need. That Groton finds an appropriate balance where technology genuinely improves public safety while preserving residents' privacy, civil liberties and trust in local government.

I don't understand why one of the options isn't "independent research of credible sources" Since those aren't listed, here are what else formed my very informed views on this topic:
Independent research into ALPR/camera technology
Government reports, legislation, court decisions or regulatory materials
Privacy, cybersecurity or civil-liberties organizations
Vendor/manufacturer information
Public records, contracts, policies or meeting records
Documented incidents involving successful use or misuse of the technology

Despite what may be GPD's best efforts, I do not believe Flock can be trusted to protect data. There is good reason there is so much national controversy and so many towns, including in MA, ending contracts or letting them expire without renewal.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I don't think the benefits of this technology outweigh the risks to privacy

Any Comments?:

Since the votes at town meeting (to allocate the money in the first place, and then refusing to allocate the funding at Spring '26's meeting), the information available to the public about Flock has changed. The public in general has gained a greater understanding of how they work, how they have repeatedly been used maliciously by end-users, and how the company itself has ignored contracts and refused to protect data.

Comments?:
when they are for taking tolls on roads I approve the use.
When they are used to track citizens I DO NOT APPROVE of their use.

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Comments?:
There is a flock system at the end of my road I
ABSOLUTELY DO NOT APPROVE of its use to track people. I can think of no good use it could be put to in GROTON

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They record both video or capture still images of license plates

,
Comments?:
They can do both if someone wants to pay for that. I guess that most do still pictures.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Tracking what everyone is doing is POLICE STATE thinking. It breaches everyone's privacy. It smacks of totalitarianism and is really unAmerican to me

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That they remove it -- Keep it for tolls. Keep it off the streets of our country.

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Q3

Respondent skipped this question

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

once data is aggregated and shared it cannot be "pulled back" and over time rules and controls around usage are expanded, forgotten or not followed. There is a lot more to say than this survey allows, but I have 30 years of experience with data and it's persistence - so my views informed and not naive.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That we realize that just because we can do something doesn't mean we should.

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Keep surveillance out of our great town! Follow what many neighboring towns are doing by deactivating and removing them. Crime is not an issue in our town, give us the benefit of the doubt and the freedom to move around without being tracked.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Body worn cameras have great benefit for both the officer and the civilian. That is entirely separate from adding surveillance across the town to track our movements. Seems pretty straight forward, right?

Comments?:

Certainly, cameras can capture still images with sufficient resolution to read license plates, but not sure if they have video ability or where all that data would be stored.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

I have no concerns and do not understand why folks are so upset about this topic. I have nothing to hide about where I go on the streets of Groton.

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Misuse. Collected data should reside only in the town and not be federated with other systems or databases. Such data should only be interrogated by designated police employees of the town. Permanent logging of all data interrogation/viewing should be automated. Logs should be reviewed for misuse by non-police department town employees. The police department should provide a yearly report to the town itemizing uses of the system, reasons for use and outcomes from the systems use.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Provide a useful tool to aid safety and law enforcement.

Comments?:

You can say that they don't record video but it's been proven without a doubt multiple times that these companies are recording video and not being transparent about it.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Loss of privacy which is already dwindling in America. The misuse of the technology so that police officers can stalk whoever they want (which has already happened over and over and over again). The fact that this data is being sold to any private company and we don't get to know which. The fact that multiple people have already been arrested falsely due to misinterpretation of this technology and a stunning lack of oversight. The fact that these cameras are run by an opaque private company whose own CEO would never allow a flock camera near his home, once he has one outside his house call me back and I'll consider it

Zero, none, nothing. Don't let them in our town

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Comments?:

Depends on which Flock product is used.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Flock does not use end to end encryption. Therefore they have access to the database of all of their cameras. From there they can provide the data to anyone including the government. This will eventually create a surveillance state.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

If Groton police purchase a local license plate reading system that only they have access to the I see an overall advantage to local policing. The day should be encrypted and made available only to Groton police for legitimate police work and by a court with a proper warrant.

Q2

Not familiar at all

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

I don't know,

Comments?:

I don't know. I believe still. They are flock cameras so they can create heat maps and track individual driver data for up to a month which seems like a horrible idea. Several police forces have cancelled Flock camera contracts as their executives are not truthful about the technology and data usage.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

1. There have been many cases of police in the US using the data and it turns out the data was wrong and people were accused of things they did not do. 2. Tracking individual movements like flock can do and inserting that data into their larger eco system seems like an invasion of privacy and rights. Authoritarian states are for the birds

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I have no hope for this technology. Every step we take that infringes on our civil liberties is a step backwards. We live in a small community. I completely respect our police force but there is a lot of evidence that flock cameras have facilitated lazy police work where facts aren't checked. Humans in the loop are important. Do your jobs.

Interviews with flock CEO have been disheartening as well. We shouldn't be rewarding technology like this. Flock wants to make money and have a history of dishonesty. They don't care about civil liberties and are pretty much on record about that. The accuracy of the algorithms has flaws and using that data to put residents in potential jeopardy of false accusations and legal action is bad form.

Somewhat familiar,

Comments?:

What crimes have they helped with in Groton (specifically which ones and how many, and what kind of help was needed - something no other tool could do)? What is our crime rate and types of crimes committed?

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They capture still images,

Comments?:

The primary product is images, but I do believe some ALPRs are starting to offer video: Traditional and most widely deployed ALPRs primarily capture standalone static images, but the industry has increasingly shifted toward systems that record video. (Wired) Also enough images strung together is basically video in all intents and purposes.

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Pervasive surveillance: Slippery slope when privacy is already at a premium in our society.

Capitalism: We know that the leading companies in this space operate strictly "for profit" - so, they will find ways to make money on our data, our movements, us, and we probably won't like it.

Misuse: This tool allows stalking and targeting on a major scale with few guardrails, tie in that they aren't perfect and you have a "perfect storm" for enabling harassment and potentially deadly interactions due to mistaken identity.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Honestly? That we as a society don't need these kinds of preventative & detection aids, but I know that is naive. But to expect that they will be used without someone abusing them is also naive.

Q3 They capture still images

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

privacy. police misuse.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

That we can feel confident it will only be turned on when police have strong confidence it will stop a criminal. Not on 24/7 (more like .5/24hr. A senior officer must approve turning it on. We need accountability.

Any Comments?:

We've had problem police in Groton (fortunately, I'm not aware of any current problems). I've had bad experiences with police in neighboring towns; bored police; manipulative and egotistical police. Police are human too; they make mistakes, but when police make mistakes, it's a much bigger deal than when almost anyone else makes a mistake.

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

I don't know,

Comments?:

I know they capture data identifying the car license plate but not sure if video or still. Doesnt matter to me as it is still intrusive

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

I do not believe we should be tracking peoples movements. There is no guarantee how this material is used and I would go out of my way to avoid roads with the cameras. I do not support the use of the flock cameras. There does not appear to be proper regulation and consideration of citizens rights.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I would like to see it removed.

I don't know,

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Comments?:

The technology/capability exists to do both as well as extract image data (i.e. license number, time, travel direction)

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Misuse - which I believe can be mitigated by proper access, controls and storage mechanisms. Depending on the vendor/solution and contract this can be under municipal control. For instance the system could only allow access to data from specific times/locations or reporting on a list of licenses where owner has warrants or whatever the town determines with appropriate access and oversight.

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Public safety, Crime detection, prevention & enforcement

I personally don't have any concerns. If it helps with safety, I'm all for it. So many instances of bad driving. Running lights, crossing double yellow lines to pass someone, tailgating. Just to name a few.

Q1 Somewhat familiar

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Q2 Not familiar at all

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Q3 They record video

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

Q4
What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

Active tracking license plates throughout the vendor's system.

Q5
What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

Assist local police with solving crimes, not monitoring the public. Video should be available to review crimes and locate individuals involved with a warrant. It should not be used to actively track or monitor people in real time, unless there is cause to believe an individual is a danger or is in danger and not without a warrant.

Any Comments?:

I have nothing against our local public safety department, but I am very skeptical about how large corporations are using AI and how private citizens privacy is being eroded. We already have very little privacy without being monitored 24/7.

Q1

Before today, how familiar were you with automated license plate reader systems and how they're used?

Well Versed,

Comments?:

The flock cameras are not just license plate readers

Q2

How familiar are you with automated license plate reader systems and if/how they are used in Groton?

Somewhat familiar

Q3

As far as you know, do these kinds of cameras record video or just capture still images of license plates?

They record both video or capture still images of license plates

,

Comments?:

And also auto zoom in on your phone screen if they can

Q4

What is your single biggest concern with this technology, if any?

That the company's running this dont take the proper precautions and measures to keep the data safe and not abuse it

Q5

What is your single biggest hope of expected benefit of this technology?

I would be fine with license plate readers if they were actually just that cause it could help the police do their job but the current uses for them are just to diversified and unregulated
